This webinar is approved by the National Board for Health & Wellness Coaching (CEP # 100057) and the International Coach Federation for 2 continuing education units.

Coaches have a passion to help others transform and improve their lives. They also have a unique set of skills that can really contribute to the changes we need to see during this time of large-scale systemic change. Which leads to the question-- how do we leverage our skills, increase our awareness, and shift our actions to be more inclusive in our coaching approach, to better respond to the needs of our clients in this rapidly changing world?

This event provides an opportunity to explore foundational differences in definitions of health and wellness that are present in diverse populations, the health equity and disparity issues that different populations face, and coaching approaches that meet the needs of these diverse populations as they strive for optimal wellbeing.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

REV. DR. SHAWN MOORE

is an adjunct Professor at Bethel University, an Ordained Minister, and former Police Officer. Besides teaching Anthropology and Reconciliation, Shawn is an Implicit Bias instructor and Verbal De-escalation instructor training Police Officers for the state of Minnesota. His doctoral research was focused on using coaching as a means to build reconciliation. He is also a student of Learning Journeys International School of Coaching. Shawn has 20 years of experience teaching and facilitating workshops around Race, Implicit Bias, and Cultural Anthropology. Shawn also serves on the ICF Minnesota Board of Directors and is the chair of the ICF MN Diversity & Inclusion team.

There will also be a lively panel discussion featuring Health Coaches Jamie Hazelton, Solange Monono, and Jill Greendeer.

This webinar is presented by the University of Minnesota's Earl E. Bakken Center for Spirituality & Healing and the International Coach Federation.
