Privilege is essential for learning how to best use our power to improve health for all partners and being willing to disrupt the status quo. Self-reflecting and identifying where we have fallen short is vital. Reaching our goals for integrative health equity calls for fostering strong relationships with community members. Dr. Chao says...